These peace officers are the first link in the county's chain of law enforcement. Along with their deputies, constables have all the enforcement powers of Texas peace officers. They are sometimes referred to as the executive officer of the justice of the peace courts. Their duties are to: Subpoena witnesses; Act as bailiff; Execute judgments; and Service of process. As certified Texas peace officers, constables must complete required training for all peace officers and pass the Texas Commission on Officer Standards and Education (TCLEOSE) exam. Deputy Constables must be TCLEOSE certified upon assuming their duties, while the Occupations Code gives elected constables up to 270 days after taking office to obtain certification. Constables and their deputies must also complete at least 20 hours of continuing civil process education training every four years.
